

Additive manufacturing, FDM. General tolerance  $\pm 0.3$  mm unless specified.
Holes and mating features to be reamed/drilled to final size.

The rounded cutout in the middle is not shape-critical.
Must clear  $\phi 50$  mm at center and connect to upper rectangular opening

|                                                                                                       |                  |            |           |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------|------------|-----------|
| Embedded Implementation of an Attendance System for Integration into an Enterprise Application |                  |            |           |
| Author: Jakub HloušekSupervisor: Ing. Michal Bastl, Ph.D                                          |                  |            |           |
| File: PCB2.FCStd > Mid pieceSheet: LH-MEC-30                                                      |                  |            |           |
| Lighthouse - PCB mount                                                                         |                  |            |           |
| Size: A3                                                                                              | Date: 16.05.2026 | Scale: 1:1 | Rev: 1    |
| FreeCAD 1.1.0                                                                                         |                  |            | Id: 1 / 1 |